The Summer Course (from now on, Summer Course) with the theme "Interreligious dialogue and rights" (Interreligious dialogue and rights) is part of the initiatives of the Department of Law and is organized in collaboration with the Higher Institute of Sciences Religious of the Pontifical Theological Faculty "S. Giovanni Evangelista" and the "Peaceworkers" Association of Mazara del Vallo.

INTRODUCTION - KEY CONCEPT

The axis of the Summer Course consists of the dialogue interfaith, meaning the faith-based tool for the prevention and management of conflicts and ethnic and cultural wings that form the background to the current migration. The course is aimed at the acquisition of skills and abilities in the field of interaction between different religious approaches and the comparison between the legal systems of the religions of the Euro-Mediterranean area. In particular, it intends to offer a broad-spectrum perspective, which will allow participants to learn the relationship models between religions, cultures and confessional systems, with reference to specific common areas such as jurisdiction and protection of rights, family and gender, financial systems, dietary rules. In this perspective, similarities, differences, ways of carrying out the individual institutes common to Christianity, Islam and Judaism will be investigated with attention also to the tensions that, on these relevant topics, can arise between the various religious and ethnic-cultural communities present in the current social context, and the method for relating the different views and agevolar nor the governance.

THEMES AND OBJECTIVES

The Summer Course seeks to learn and investigate the dynamics of the comparison between systems legal religious, understanding what aspect relevant interreligious dialogue confessional and intercultural, helping to shape the problematic he related to social cohesion and governance differences. In particular, the course will focus on the following aspects:

- (1) Management and transformation of conflict on a religious basis: the dialogical approach between religious confessions;
- (2) Comparison between religions and confessional regulations of the Euro-Mediterranean area;
- (3) Similarities, differences, problematic aspects between common areas: jurisdiction and protection of rights, family and gender, finance and the market .

METHODOLOGY

Two seminars will be held in each working day, which will address the challenges posed by the mass migration phenomenon, with the aim of studying the various issues involved.

In order to stimulate a more active participation, at the end of the seminar session, a "laboratory" is also planned for those enrolled in the Summer Course , aimed at developing and deepening the topics introduced and discussed during the seminars, with the intervention of operators of integration policies and of inter-religious dialogue actors.
